

Be still my beating heart

Every bone in my body every drop of my blood every inch of my soul I loved you with all I've got The first time that I saw you the first time I spoke your name the first time that you smiled at me I'd never be the same
Be still my beating heart

I'd swear I heard you breathing felt your homeless fingertips how your neck bent the darkness the softness of your lips You were the final breeze of summer in my face we walked around the lake to the home in your embrace
Be still my beating heart

"The earth turned to bring us closer.
It turned on itself and in us... until it finally brought us together in this dream."

Had I known then what I know now last time I held you tight
In your eyes I'd looked more deeply
To know the woman inside
And I just want to tell you I'm sorry that I've hurt not letting you be doubting your every word When to fight or to give in is a lover supposed to know all happiness I wish you anywhere you go
Be still my beating heart
